

Bridleway No.506 – Grayshott Road (B3002) to Ludshott Common [becomes Bramshott BW512]

This bridleway leaves Grayshott Road at its junction with Seymour Road (Pic 1). There is a finger post.

Shortly there is a crossroads of paths (Pic 2): to the left is a parking area favoured by dog-walkers; straight ahead is BW507; and to the right is the continuation of BW506.

After a short period under trees (Pic 3) the path comes out into the open and is joined from the left by a well-used track (Pic 4) which closely follows the Headley/Bramshott parish boundary. It is not a numbered right of way.

Soon there is the junction with BW503 (connecting with Seymour Road); and shortly after that we slip unannounced over the parish boundary into Bramshott (Pic 5) and the bridleway becomes Bramshott BW512.

We shall nevertheless continue.

At a crossroads of tracks (Pic 6) go straight ahead along a narrower track through heather (Pic 7).

Before long, look for an unmarked turn to the left and downhill (Pic 8) – or you will find yourself looping back the way you came, but along FP59 (although this itself is a well-used circular walk).

The bridleway goes sharply downhill (Pic 9) to a five-ways junction (Pic10, reverse direction).

Here you may turn right for BOAT 38 towards Pond Road; or take one of several tracks onto other parts of Ludshott Common.

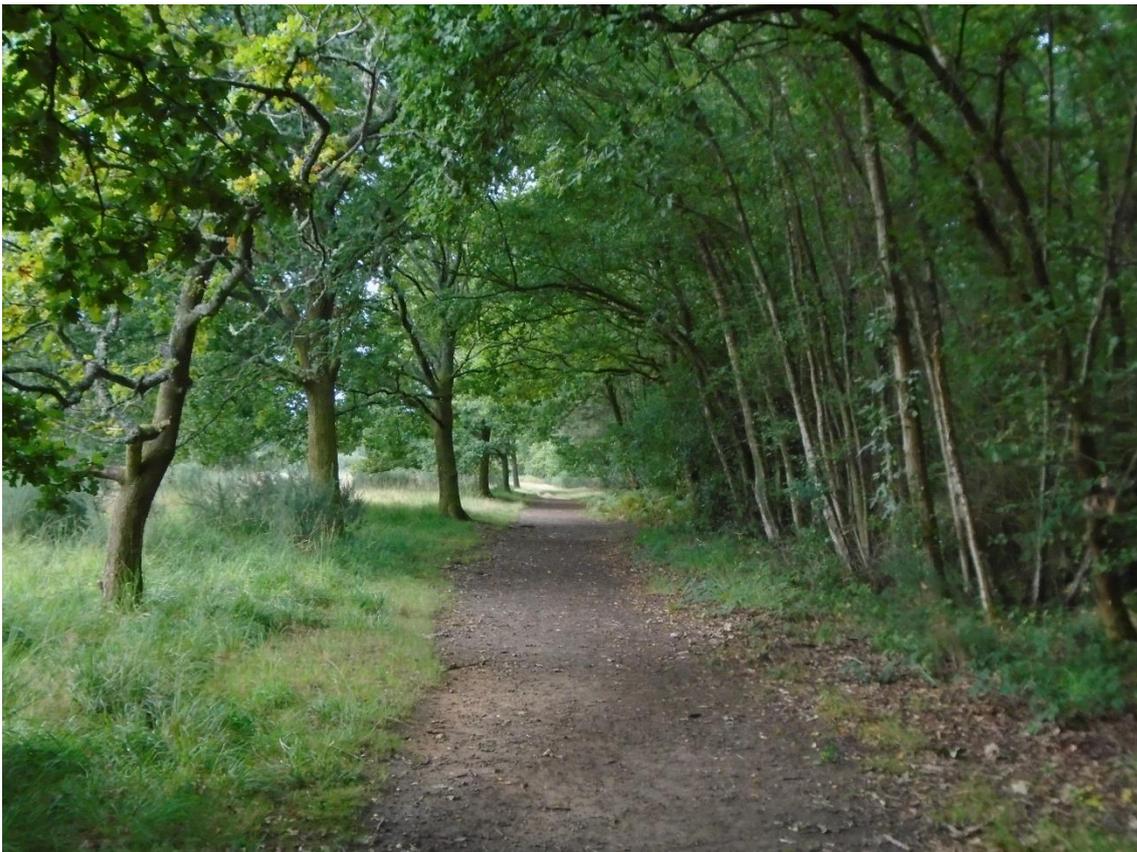

Pic 1: Entrance from Seymour Road.

Pic 2: Junction with BW507 (ahead). BW506 turns right.

Pic 3: Along the edge of Ludshott Common.

Pic 4: Joined from the left by a well-used track, not a numbered right of way.

Pic 5: Somewhere along this length, Headley BW506 becomes Bramshott BW512. (Who knew?)

Pic 6: Go straight ahead here.

Pic 7:

Pic 8: Turn left here!! [not waymarked] – Or go round the bend and back on yourself via FP59.

Pic 9: Going down to five-ways junction.

Pic 10: At five-ways junction. View of BW506 (aka BW512) coming downhill. To left is BOAT 38.
